Explore the Derwent Valley

The Derwent Valley is special with an outstanding diversity of landscape, geology, heritage and wildlife, where the gentle landscape of the lowlands meets the rugged uplands of the Peak District National Park. The Derwent Valley Mills World Heritage Site is globally recognised.

Take a journey back to an age when Britain held centre-stage as the world's first industrial nation; to a place where water power was first successfully harnessed for textile production (a milestone in the Industrial Revolution).

Your journey on the Derwent Valley Line, from the urban edge of Derby, is characterised by open landscape and riverside meadows, beyond which are open upland pasture and large expanses of steep-sided ancient woodlands hugging the hillsides. At Matlock both the Victorians were left in awe by the sheer cliff faces of High Tor, marking the change in geology from limestone to gritstone.

Jump aboard and join us, to discover attractions that all the family can enjoy including market towns, historic houses and gardens, theme parks, museums, outdoor pursuits and much more. Enjoy the valley on foot via the Derwent Valley Heritage Way; the 'station to station' walks linking travel by train; or experience the Peak District via the multi-user Monsal Trail. Whether your interests are family fun, walking, cycling, history or wildlife the Derwent Valley is the perfect choice for a summer outing or a winter break.

Peak District National Park

The Peak District National Park is one of 15 national parks in the UK. It was the first area to be designated a national park in 1951.

Surrounded by Derby, Sheffield, Manchester and Stoke, the Peak District National Park is at the heart of the nation. The unique landscape of steep limestone valleys, impressive gritstone edges and rolling hills make the National Park a special place for everyone to enjoy. Whether you want to come and walk, cycle or climb, take in the views or visit our towns and villages, there's something for everyone.

Come and explore the National Park by train and bus - it's on your doorstep.

Travel Information

Trains on the Derwent Valley Line operate a frequent service between Nottingham, Beeston, Atterborough, Long Eaton, Derby and the local Derwent Valley Line Stations. The journey from Derby to Matlock takes around 30 minutes, and from Nottingham about an hour. From Matlock, bus services run to the Peak District National Park. History of The Derwent Valley Line

The Derwent Valley Line was once part of the truly scenic Midland Railway passing through the Peak District, linking Derby with Buxton and Manchester.

The line was opened in stages from 1840. The first section between Derby and Ambergate was opened in 1840 as part of the North Midland Railway between Derby and Leeds.

The section between Ambergate and Rowsley was opened by the Manchester, Buxton, Matlock and Midland Junction Railway in 1849. It wasn't until 1863 that the railway was extended from Rowsley through to Buxton via Bakewell and Millers Dale, continuing to Chinley in 1867 and later into Manchester, creating a main line from London St Pancras.

The line continued in use for over a hundred years until in March 1967 local services north of Matlock were withdrawn, followed by the closure of that section of the line on 1 July 1968.

Since then local services have operated along the Derwent Valley Line to Matlock with Peak Rail operating between Matlock and Rowsley.

Today, walkers and cyclists can enjoy two sections of the Monsal Trail: for 5 miles between Matlock and Rowsley and a further 8½ miles between Bakewell and Chee Dale. Beyond this, the railway remains open for the movement of quarry traffic only.

At Duffield, the Midland Railway also opened a line to Wirksworth in 1867. A passenger service operated until 1947 and the line remained open for freight, until the last stone train in 1985. The railway was reopened in 2011, as the Ecclesbourne Valley Railway, providing heritage rail services.
